YOUNG HORSES DRAW
ATTENTION OF FANS

By J. W. MARCHBANK

This is the time of year when all the talk is about the various races for three year olds called by the name of "Derby." Of course the only real event entitled to the historic name is the one renewed last Wednesday at Epsom Downs, bringing together all the best of the age in England. By the frequent use of the name in other countries it has got to be that the outstanding race for three year olds in a certain locality is denominated "Derby" without further ado.

So it happens Bold Venture proved to be the winner in the Kentucky Derby and Rushaway in both the Illinois Derby and the Latonia Derby. The accomplishment of Rushaway was especially noteworthy as he scored in the Illinois on Friday and was shipped over to Kentucky to take the laurels in the Latonia on the following day. A little later more contests, each by the name of "Derby," will be run. A nation-wide movement to give the races other names, each indicating the locality in which it is run, such as the Everglades or Flamingo in Florida, is under way and is gaining headway.

At the present writing Bold Venture must be accounted the champion three year old of this country, as he not only won the Kentucky Derby but defeated good ones in the Preakness. Brevity's stock took a tumble by his failure to do better than second in the Withers last Saturday.

It must be admitted the English are sticklers for hardy performers. The Epsom Derby, as is well known, is at one mile and four furlongs, a distance that tests both the speed and stamina of the colts and fillies. The Latonia Derby is now run over the mile and two furlong route, having been shortened from the true Derby distance. The Illinois race is at the much abbreviated distance of one mile and one furlong.

Unless an event is at one mile and four furlongs there appears to be no reason whatever for calling it by the name of "Derby" and even then it shows a lack of invention on the part of track owners. Call the main three year old race by some other name is my advice.

We have developed fast horses in the United States; in fact, all the emphasis in the last two or three decades has been on speed and more speed. Perhaps the pendulum is due to swing back and right here in California we may breed a few real stayers able to hold their own at any distance, even a mile and a half in the spring.

Council Transacts
Routine BusinessNo Excitement Mars The Harmonious Conduct Of Session Of City Dads

The entire membership of the City Council of Daly City answered to their respective names, Monday evening of this week, on roll call for the second regular session of the month at the City Hall.

A petition, signed by a number of merchants on the Junipero Serra boulevard, protesting against continuance in business there of J. D. Martini was read. The protestants stated orally that the merchant complained of was doing business in a section zoned for residential purposes and that he is not in possession of a business license from the city. The matter was referred to Chief of Police Reardon for adjudication.

A communication from J. W. Marchbank, accompanying a quit claim deed to the city library property on Mission street was read. Restrictions attached to the gift of the library to Daly City, provided that the use of this property only for library purposes was mandatory. This restriction was removed by presentation of the quit claim deed and it will now be possible to build a library on another location and retain the original site for other uses.

Pat King Used Cars firm applied for a permit to install tanks and filling pumps at their place of business at 6601 Mission street. This was granted.

A resolution was received from the City and County of San Francisco asking adoption of grades as established for intersecting streets with San Jose avenue, when that thoroughfare shall be widened. The city engineer recommended no action be taken until plans had been submitted and approved. This was referred to Chairman Fahey of the street committee.

Police Judge W. H. Clay requested installation of equipment and books to properly take care of the business

PIONEER WOMAN
DIES IN COLMAProminent Resident Leaves
Many Relatives To Mourn Loss

It was with sorrow that the many friends of Miss Olga Olive J. Ottoboni learned of her passing away Saturday, after a long illness, at her home in Colma.

Miss Ottoboni, who was a pioneer resident of Colma was the daughter of Anita and the late Bernardo Ottoboni, sister of Mrs. Theresa Vireno, William, Eustace and Raymond Ottoboni, and aunt of Dr. Lawrence Vireno, Mabel, Andrew Jr. and Esther Vireno.

The funeral was held Tuesday morning of this week from a San Francisco mortuary, thence to Holy Angels Church in Colma, where a requiem high mass was celebrated for the repose of her soul. Interment was at Holy Cross Cemetery.

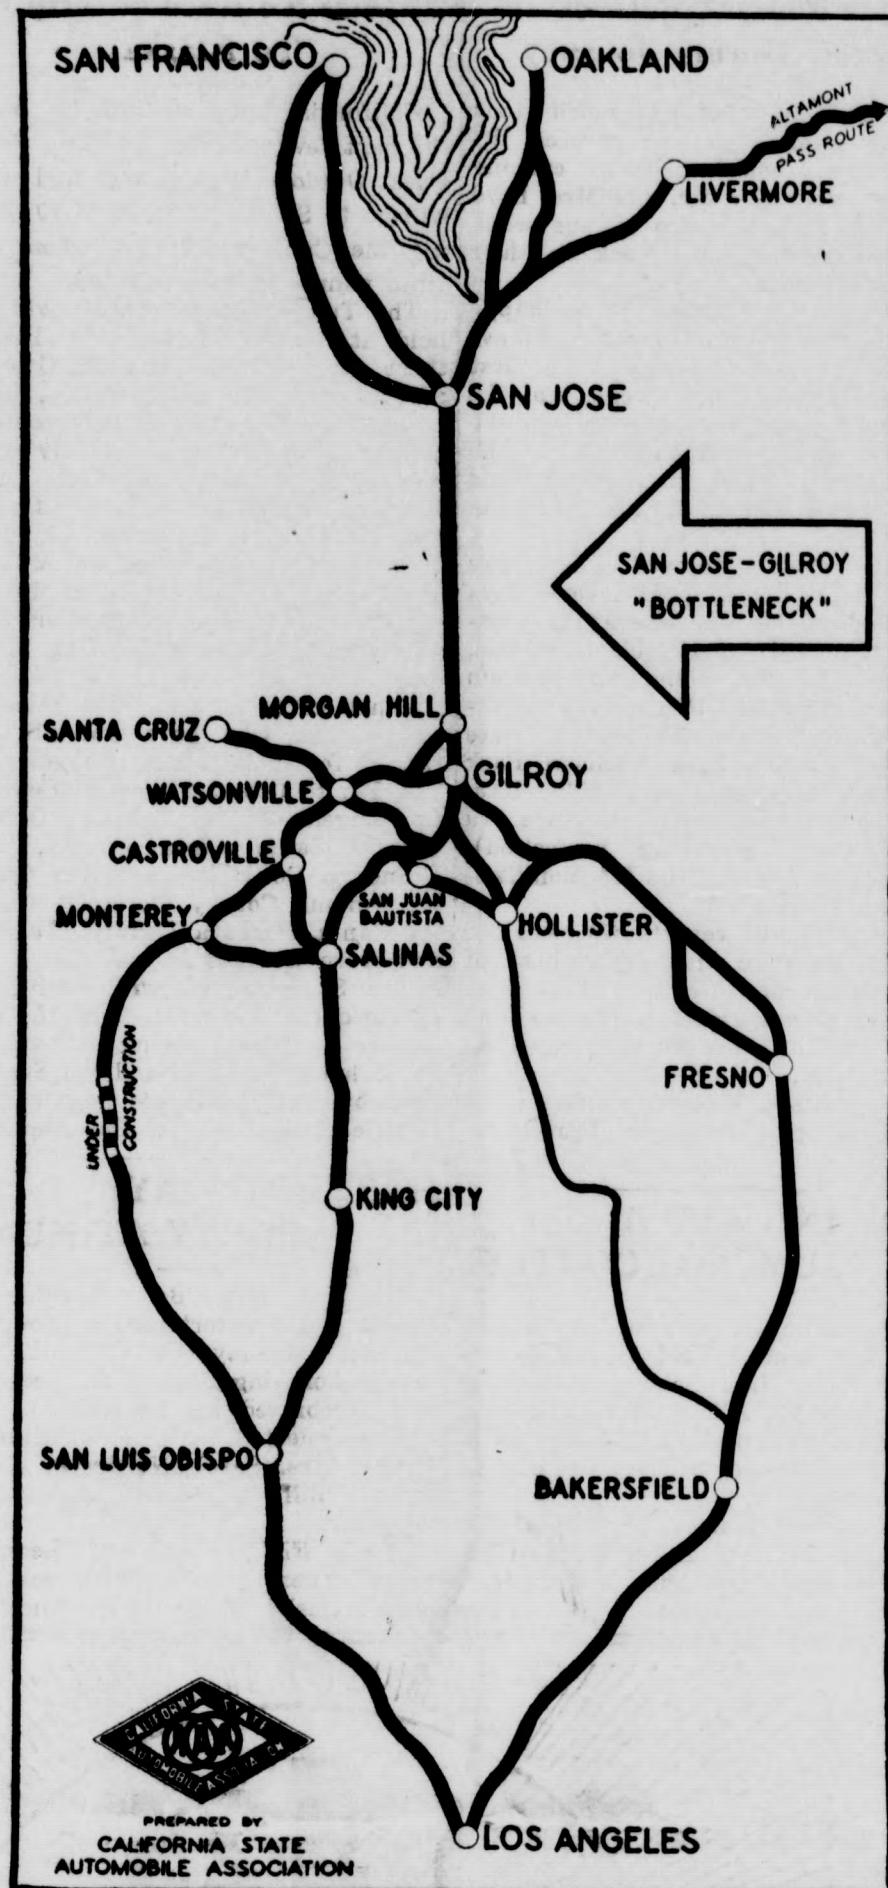

Deceased was a member of Victoria Colonna Club and Court Golden Gate No. 765, I. O. F.

The family wishes to express their sincere thanks and appreciation to their many friends for the kind expressions of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings.

MOTHERS ASKED TO CO-OPERATE

A plea is being made to have a greater number of children to attend sessions of supervised play at the old Vista Grande School.

Parents should not lose this opportunity to help our children. Mothers are asked to please send their children to the Vista Grande School every Saturday to play and you will know they are safe. New volley balls and other equipment have been purchased. Let the children enjoy the new balls.

The San Jose-Gilroy "bottleneck" section of the main coast highway, U. S. 101, in relation to the network of routes which feed traffic into it from both north and south is shown by this map prepared by the California State Automobile Association. Strong efforts are being made by the motorists organization and other groups to have the San Jose-Gilroy road widened immediately.

ASK BOTTLENECK BE WIDENED ON
COAST HIGHWAYActive Efforts Are Now Being Made To Have Dangerous Condition Of Road Remedied.

How the San Jose-Gilroy road acts as a "bottleneck" for traffic and radiates its harmful effects over a wide area is vividly portrayed by the accompanying map. Feeding into this narrow and inadequate section of road from both north and south is the flow of traffic from some of the state's most important and heavily traveled routes.

These routes include the main coast highway, U. S. 101, of which the San Jose-Gilroy road is an integral part; the popular vacation and resort area of the Monterey Bay region; the Pacheco Pass road, connecting with the San Joaquin Valley; and in the north main routes leading from San Francisco and Oakland and also by the way of the Altamont Pass from the northern San Joaquin Valley.

Active efforts are now in progress to have the San Jose-Gilroy road widened at once. The San Jose Chamber of Commerce has called a mass meeting in San Jose for Tuesday evening, June 2, to take this matter and insist on the work being started immediately.

With the slogan "Do It Now" as their rallying cry, all communities affected by the congested and dangerous conditions on the San Jose-Gilroy section are joining forces to have the road improved without further delay. Many Chambers of Commerce and other groups have adopted resolutions endorsing the projects and have advised the State Highway Commission of their action.

GILROY ROUNDUP
OVER WEEK END

Thrilling rodeo events, street parades, 49 Camps and dances—these are only a few of the attractions to marvel at this week end in Gilroy, the little Santa Clara County town that has become famous throughout the West for its annual Roundup and Gymkhana.

With thoroughbred horses and cattle coming from the West's best known stables, as well as the vicious, bucking animals from the wilds making the trek to Gilroy for the entertainment of the Gymkhana spectators, everything points to the biggest and most entertaining spectacle that Gilroy has ever presented.

The '49 Camp, which will hold forth on Friday and Saturday nights, May 29 and 30, will be an event long remembered by those who attend. The Queen contest to decide who shall rule over this year's celebration is to take place this evening, Friday, May 29.

IN CELEBRATION OF ANNIVERSARY

Forty members of Hillcrest Circle 143, Order of Druids, gathered at Lido Cafe in San Francisco, Tuesday evening of this week, when they enjoyed a dinner celebrating the seventh anniversary of the instituting of that circle.

A huge birthday cake decorated the center of the table. Mrs. Madeline Fellows, district deputy and the First Arch Druidess of Hillcrest Circle, had the honor of cutting the cake.

All present enjoyed this exceptional occasion greatly and left looking forward to the next anniversary. Those in charge of the dinner were Ida Mae Laswell, Pearl Roberts and Hazel Keagle.

REGULAR MEET
OF MERCHANTS
ASSOCIATION

The Daly City Merchants Association will meet in regular session Wednesday evening of next week, June 3, at the City Hall.

Matters of importance, including plans for the annual picnic on Sunday, August 30, at Oak Cove Park, will come up for discussion.

Daly City merchants can better help themselves by becoming associated with their home town association and attending the regular meetings on the first Wednesday evening of each month at the City Hall.

Remember the next meeting, Wednesday evening of next week, June 3.

The State Supervisors Association, meeting in convention at Eureka last week, endorsed the entire program presented by representative members of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

With reference to the three propositions sponsored by the San Mateo County group and adopted by the convention were improvement of beach lands, return of control of the state highway patrol to the counties, return of control of billboards to the counties.

The association passed resolutions as follows:

To secure the allotment of state and federal funds, both for direct purchase of beach lands and for matching local expenditures for this purpose.

Instructing its legislative committee to draft a bill to present to the legislature calling for control of state highway patrol units by the various counties.

Ordering the same committee to draft another bill giving counties the right to pass on applications to build billboards before the applications are submitted to the state for approval.

ANOTHER DALY
CITY PIONEER
PASSES AWAY

Another pioneer of Daly City entered the portals of his long home, following a brief illness of two days. William George Klos, 61, of Woodrow street succumbed to pneumonia last Sunday at his home.

The surviving relatives are a son, William E. Klos, and two daughters, Catherine Klos and Susan Sanders.

The funeral was conducted from a San Francisco mortuary establishment, Tuesday of this week. Services were held at 3 o'clock that afternoon. Interment was in Olivet Memorial Park.

Parade And Exercises
On Saturday

The annual Poppy Sale is now in full swing. Mrs. Margaret Orr, of Daly City Unit No. 410 of the American Legion Auxiliary is chairman and her daughter, Betty Louise, chairman of the Juniors. Miss Betty, by the way, is the young lady who last year started out with poppies early in the morning and became so enthused that she forgot to come home to eat until late at night. Remember, comrades and friends, that proceeds from sale of these poppies go to help disabled veterans and for rehabilitation work.

Don't forget the Memorial Day parade, Saturday morning, starting at 10 o'clock at Mission circle and ending at Daly City Park, where Memorial services will be held.

The fifty piece silver set, with silver tray to match, which Daly City Post No. 410 of the American Legion is raffling off, is now on display at McGraw's Drug Store. Up to Sunday, May 24, Chairman Jakobson had personally sold 170 tickets and Comrade F. Chapman 100 tickets. Chairman Jakobson would like to hear from the rest of the comrades. The proceeds go toward liquidating the building debt.

The first nomination of officers and election of delegates of Post No. 410 will take place the second Wednesday in June and the final nomination and election of officers will be held the last Wednesday in June. Don't miss these meetings.

Those We Loved
Live On In Memory

Lift High the Torch

As this striking memorial portrays the constancy of the men who died for God and Country, so we must carry on the task they left behind—the preservation of a nation free and independent. It is our duty and our privilege to hold high the torch of American liberty and preserve our principles as they fought for them. Pray God we may not fail.

In loving remembrance of those we "have loved long since and lost awhile" let us pause a few hours to join in the Memorial Services tomorrow, May 30, here in Daly City.

Our various organizations will take part in a large public parade. The merchants have agreed to close shop between the hours of ten and twelve that they, too, may participate in this grand community event.

At 10:30 the parade will start at Mission circle and move south on Mission street to the Daly City Park, where Fred Collins will be master of ceremonies.

Services will be conducted by Rev. J. R. Stevenson, pastor of the Grace Presbyterian Church, and Father Donahue of Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church. A number of prominent speakers will deliver addresses during the exercises.

NO ONE INJURED
IN CAR COLLISION

Two machines, one driven by Ernest Everett of 429 Knowles avenue, proceeding south on San Diego avenue, and the other piloted by Constance Martini of 240 Hillcrest drive, collided at the intersection of San Diego avenue and Hillcrest drive, Sunday afternoon.

The machines were slightly damaged, but, fortunately, no one was injured, although one of the machines turned over on the sidewalk.

JOTTINGS FROM THE LOCAL FIELD

Mrs. Elizabeth Wettstein of Church street, Grand Regent of Court St. Mary No. 1155, returned Sunday evening from Hollister, where she spent an inspiring week end attending the Catholic Daughters of America's conference as a delegate from the local court.

Miss Edith Scalia of Irvington street attended the annual Tamalpais Mountain play in Marin County, Sunday, which this year was George Bernard Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion."

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Jordan of Bellevue avenue had as their dinner guests, Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. A. Larson of San Diego-avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Russel Orr and family of Santa Barbara avenue motored to Morgan Hill, Sunday, and spent a delightful day.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Gillmore and children of Westlake avenue moved, Saturday last, to San Mateo.

Mrs. Viola Sheldmadne of Hanover street was removed to the U. C. Hospital, last Sunday evening. She has been in poor health for the past year.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Domenici and daughter Grace Marie of Mission circle motored, with friends, to Lompico, in the Santa Cruz Mountains, Friday of last week, where they spent a delightful week end.

Henry Sari Sr. of Risel street, who has been seriously ill for the past two weeks, was removed to the Community Hospital, Thursday of last week, where he is undergoing treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Lesley M. Hill were hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Lon Malloy and Mrs. Laura M. Hole of Fresno over the week end.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS TO GO TO CONVENTION

Expect Drill Team To Come Home As Winners Of Competition

(By W. J. Lehigh)

The annual poppy drive for the benefit of disabled soldiers was very successful. Old Glory Post and Auxiliary disposed of their quota in the remarkably short time of two days. The Girls Unit ably assisted their sponsors by selling quite a number.

Convention time is drawing closer each day and everyone who intends going to San Bernardino June 14 to 19 is working hard. The Post degree team is anxious to win and the boys are going to work zealously for the next two weeks, in order that each member may have his part perfected. According to various reports, Old Glory Post has the finest degree team in California. If this can be proven at the coming affair down South, where many teams will compete, then we'll have something to really crow about. Here's hoping that every member is able to attend.

The Auxiliary and the degree team participated in the parade at Milpitas on May 17, to help celebrate a religious "Jamborita." The ladies and men responded 100 per cent and were acclaimed the finest looking unit of the day.

According to the drilling ability and appearance the girls should be the winning team at this year's convention. Sergeant Fred Collins has the girls in wonderful shape and if they don't win it will be due to an unforeseen obstacle that usually has the bad habit of presenting itself in one guise or another, at highly competitive drills. The girls and their leader feel very confident, however, and that is over half the battle. The uniforms and general appearances are the other half, so we feel that they will come home with colors flying in the breeze of a winning atmosphere.

Comrade Fred Linser, who is in the ring for Department Junior vice commander, has received some very satisfactory reports from the Southern electorate.

Comrade Ray Brulez, who is running for Council administration member, also reports progress.

Saturday, May 30, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion will honor their deceased comrades. The girls corps and the ladies will participate, as will the men and boys. A number of speakers have been engaged for the day.

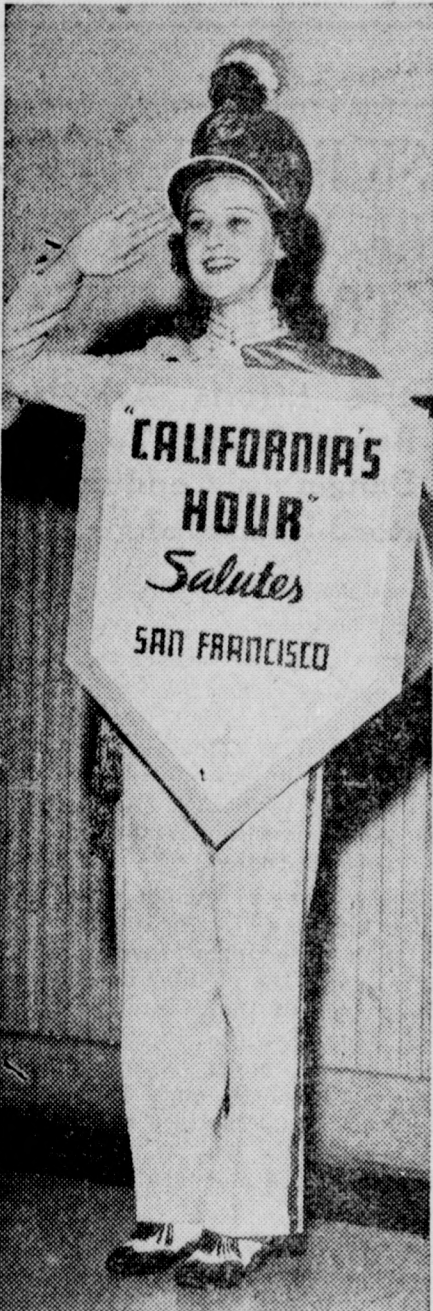

A program is being issued and will clarify the day's work considerably.

GETS BIG FISH

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Albonsky and daughter of Winchester street, at Martin's Beach, Sunday, where they spent the day picnicking.

Report has it that Jack landed two fine rock cod. Good work, boy!

And the Same to You, Miss Froman!

Jane Froman, star of the new radio program, "California's Hour," sends a salute to San Francisco in observance of the program's bow to this city Monday evening, June 1st. "California's Hour" is not only the newest among the big variety hours, but one of the most entertaining. Conrad Nagel, famous screen star, is master of ceremonies. The show is on the Columbia-Don Lee Network every Monday evening from 9 to 10.

LAW REQUIRES CAUTION PASSING STREET CARS

Certain Exceptions To Usual Requirements May Be Noted

When passing standing street cars or interurban railway cars, motorists are required by law to obey certain rules which have been made for the safety of pedestrians. This is emphasized in a statement by the Public Safety Department of the California State Automobile Association, which also points out that persons alighting from or boarding street cars are exposed to distinct danger if forced to make their way through rapidly moving street traffic. Provisions of the California Vehicle Act on the subject are summarized as follows:

The law prohibits the driver of any vehicle from passing a street car or interurban railway car on the left, except upon one-way streets. It requires that every driver overtaking a car which has stopped or is about to stop to take on or discharge passengers shall come to a stop to the rear of the nearest running board or door of the car and shall remain standing until passengers have boarded the car or reached a place of safety.

There are certain exceptions to this requirement. Where a safety zone has been established, or at an intersection where traffic is regulated by an officer or traffic signal device, the motorist overtaking a street or railway car need not come to a full stop before passing. He may proceed, but at a speed not greater than is "reasonable and proper," and in no case at more than ten miles per hour, meanwhile using due caution for the safety of any pedestrians.

HAS WHIST PARTY FOR DRILL TEAM

Mrs. Ethel Dorn, of Risel street was hostess at a benefit whist given in her home, Thursday evening of last week, for the drill team of Old Glory Auxiliary.

A pleasant evening was spent and a tidy sum was added to the treasury. The hostess wishes to thank her many friends who helped to make the affair a success.

LAST MEETING

Tuesday afternoon of next week the last meeting of this term will be held by the Pershing P. T. A., at the school, on Hanover street.

There will be a Magazine luncheon at 1 o'clock, to be followed by a whist game, to which the public is invited. Mrs. Virginia Davidson is chairman of this affair.

RETURN FROM SEVERAL WEEKS EASTERN TRIP

Daly City Folks On Tour Visit Many Points of Interest During Journey

A pleasant journey which took twenty-seven days and covered fifteen states ended, Tuesday evening of last week, for Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hauptli of San Pedro avenue when they were welcomed back to their family fireside.

The travelers report being happy for their safe return home and having had a grand trip on their first real vacation. They went via the southern route and returned via the central route. North Platte is the only city in which they encountered any fog and that is not near the ocean.

The travelers enjoyed a four day visit in St. Louis, spent several days in Springfield, Ill., where they visited the tomb of President Lincoln, the old Lincoln home and Lincoln Memorial Park. Other places of especial interest to the tourists were Grand Canyon, Zion National Park and the Zion Canyon, Boulder Dam and its magnificent structure (a dream of engineering perfection), Salt Lake City and the Mormon Tabernacle there.

Mrs. Hauptli reports the weather conditions were ideal. The heat of the desert and Death Valley made the travelers decide to return to Daly City and its temperate climate and fine water.

The return trip was made in the new car purchased in Detroit recently.

BOY INJURED IN JUMPING CONTEST

Due to an accident during the high jumping contest held at the Jefferson Union High School, Wednesday of last week, Albert MacCarthy, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. MacCarthy of Bellevue avenue, has his left arm in a cast.

As Albert jumped he slipped and, to save himself from a bad fall, landed on his left hand breaking the member at the wrist.

DALY CITY INDUSTRY MAKES BIG IMPROVEMENTS

LYSLE PRINCE

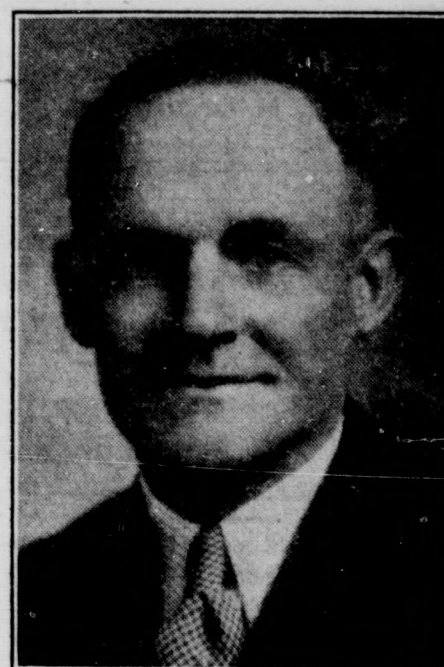

Lysle Prince is the new partner of Pat King since about the middle of March this year. He came to California about four years ago to be near his parents and relatives who have lived in San Francisco about fourteen years. Up to January 1, 1936, he was employed by General Motors units for several years in the capacity of District Manager for the factory in different divisions and as retail sales manager for different General Motors lines. Prior to his General Motors experience he was a Ford Dealer in the East and was recognized by all of his connections as a high class business and finance man. He is well acquainted with the automobile conditions in California and he and his partner Pat King should go far in their Used Car business and their new super service station.

Pat King Used Cars, owned and operated by Pat King and Lysle Prince, are opening a super service station in addition to their used car business at 6601 Mission street. These boys are to be congratulated on the improvements they have made at this address and we feel that the people of Daly City and the general public will welcome the fine improvements and the extra service they will be able to render everyone.

They have erected three of the latest and best pumps made by the Bowser Pump Company. These pumps are Xautomatic Computer Pumps made by the Bowser Company and are said to be the most accurate and efficient pumps on the market today. Pat King used cars has the honor of having the first pumps of this type on the Pacific Coast and they are made of green and black porcelain with chromium trim. At each end of the pumps there is an air and water well for the convenience of customers and after using these the hose disappear back into the wells into the ground. They have erected a large Neon "Used Car" sign at the top of the building and a large "Gas" Neon sign over the canopy covering the pumps. They have installed a large outside ladies rest room for the convenience of the public, two large flood lights, one at each end of the premises. They have erected a fireproof steel canopy over the pumps with the entire front being cement, and the flower boxes with flowers installed on the side windows makes a very attractive if not the most attractive set up in this vicinity.

They have installed high pressure grease equipment and car washing equipment and will be able to give the very finest of service. We wish the boys every success in the world.

PAT KING

Pat King is undoubtedly one of the best known automobile men in this part of California. He has been selling automobiles in San Francisco and vicinity for twenty-five years. He was on the Avenue for a number of years as salesman where he was recognized as an A-Number 1 performer and nearly always at the top of the list wherever he worked. The last few years he has acted as sales-manager for six different concerns and won several citations and prizes for his ability and aggressiveness. He knows the automobile business from A to Z and endeavors to satisfy all customers alike doing business with him. He is a resident of Daly City and has operated a Used Car dealership over a year in Daly City. Pat King and his partner should go places.

CONCORDANT ATTACK SKIMS OVER TRUTH

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

Anti-Roosevelt papers are as remarkable for their silences as for their explosions. There is no "playing up" of Treasury statements by the press men engaged in the far from laudable misrepresentation of the New Deal. For example, while the news pages and editorial pages fairly reek with yarns about New Deal extravagance and federal government deficits, it takes a long search of the financial pages to find real facts complimentary to the thoroughly hated administration.

For the ten months ending in April the government's income, Treasury statements show, increased by more than $250,000,000 and that despite the invalidation of processing taxes by an edict of the Supreme Court. Expenditures have also increased, but not as rapidly as revenue. Expenditures for recovery and relief are running approximately $170,000,000 under those of the previous fiscal year.

It is encouraging to find out that the deficit, with only a few weeks to go in the present fiscal year, is $2,700,851,000 as compared with $2,895,836,000 in the same period last year.

Unprejudiced observers have discovered that Governor Landon, of Kansas, who is expected to run against President Roosevelt in November, is a "champ" when it comes to evading straight-from-the-shoulder utterances. He is a side stepper for fair. When, oh when, electors of the opposition party are crying out, will Landon make some kind of commitment on vital issues?

Commentators of acumen are asking: "Where does Landon stand on Hearst?"

They answer the rhetorical question somewhat in this way:

Landon advisers claim that the defeat of the Hearst-supported Landon ticket in California was a matter for self-congratulation because it freed the Kansas governor from the uncertain benefits of Hearst backing. But Landon does not seem to dissociate himself from Hearst.

Landon also says he will provide humanitarian legislation, but fails to point out what kind. On many other pressing matters he is equally indefinite.

Some of the banking fraternity never get out of the fog of outmoded thinking. This was clearly demonstrated at the recent meeting of the California Bankers Association at Sacramento, when onslaughts on the Roosevelt administration were frequent and, for the most part, extremely crude.

President Roosevelt is a true conservative, as I have often declared, and all his measures, banking and other, have been put over with the one object of saving the country. So, what utter foolishness to even intimate the President is attempting to set up a dictatorship. But that is exactly what O. W. Adams, of Salt Lake City, said in an address before the assembled bankers. Adams wants no talk of planned economy or social security.

In part Adams said: "Many of the ill-starred AAA's and other triple termites would have eaten out the very vitals of our whole economic structure and brought it down in ruins about our ears, had they not been destroyed by the independent, unterrified court of the people."

"What man or woman, in possession of the facts, would choose a policy under which the cold cash saved today might be handed back tomorrow in 'symbolic money,' turning hoped-for security into stark illusion?"

A less hysterical tone characterized the constructive address of J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency, who explained that the whole aim of the federal regulation of banks is "anti-speculation" and not at all in the way of dictatorship. He proved by figures continued improvement in the condition of national banks.

LESSON SERMON OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesdames and Hypnotism, Denounced" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, May 31, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Golden Text will be: "They that observe lying vanities forsake their own mercy" (Jonah 2: 8). Other Bible citations will include: "Regard not them that have familiar spirits, neither seek after wizards, to be defiled by them: I am the Lord your God. . . . And ye shall be holy unto me: for I the Lord am holy, and have severed you from other people, that ye should be mine" (Lev. 19: 31; 20: 26).

The Lesson-Sermon will also include the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The necromancy of yesterday foreshadowed the mesmerism and hypnotism of to-day. . . . As named in Christian Science, animal magnetism or hypnotism is the specific term for error, or mortal mind. It is the false belief that mind is in matter, and is both evil and good; that evil is as real as good and more powerful. This belief has not one quality of Truth" (pp. 322, 103).

CROCKER PTA HAS INSTALLED NEW OFFICERS

Luncheon Is Occasion For Heads For Coming Year Being Seated

On Tuesday of this week Crocker P. T. A. installed new officers at a luncheon, held in the assembly room in Crocker School.

The guests were seated at tables decorated in the school colors of green and white. Mrs. Gertrude Walker, past president and Thrift chairman of the Seventeenth District, acted as the installing officer.

The Past Presidents Jewel was presented to the retiring president Mrs. Bernadine Lewis, by Mrs. Julia V. Jordan, also a past president of Crocker Unit. A beautiful gift from the members in appreciation of her years work, was presented to Mrs. Lewis by Mrs. Ruby Katch.

The officers installed for the ensuing year were Mesdames Orvilla D. Pauw, president; Aileen Suber, honorary vice president; Ethel Dorn, vice president; Lillian Cavagnaro, recording secretary; Nell Caine, corresponding secretary; Rose Abbott, financial secretary; Nora Clifton, treasurer; Julia V. Jordan, parliamentarian; Gertrude Walker, auditor; Rose Watson, historian.

After the installation of officers a regular business meeting convened, with Mrs. Bernadine Lewis presiding. Prizes were presented the winners of the Lincoln Essay Contest, Donald Howe and Betty Cohn. Awards were also made to the three whose posters were voted the most outstanding in the Poster Contest held in Crocker School. The winners were Prisella

Watson, Margaret Weiger and Hazel Anderson.

Mrs. J. W. Robb of the Second District was the speaker of the day. Her talk on "Humane Education in Home and School" was interesting and instructive.

On Tuesday of next week the sewing group will meet at the home of Mrs. Edith Frazier on Hanover street.

The next regular meeting will be held in the home of the new president, Mrs. Orvilla D. Pauw. After a short meeting tea will be served and those present will enjoy a social afternoon.

A party for the graduating class of Crocker will be held in Crocker School on the last day of the term. The committee in charge are planning many surprises and a good time is promised the boys and girls attending.

At this time the retiring officers, and especially the Publicity chairman of Crocker Unit, wish to thank the editor and his staff of the Daly City Record for the co-operation and fine publicity given us this past year. Our work has been made easier by having our program placed before the public by our home town newspaper.

DALY CITY CLUB COMES TO LIFE AND HITS BALL

Knock Out Seventeen Blows To Win By Score of 12 to 9

The Daly City Tanforans won their third victory in the State League, last Sunday, when they pounded out 17 hits against the last place Orinda Reds, at San Mateo Park.

Although the Reds strengthened this club by signing Elmer (Spec) Shea and Speed Luque, they were unable to break their jinx. Luque was forced to relieve Shea in the eighth inning and he set the Tanfos down in 1-2-3 style.

Several times it looked as though Daly City was in for a trimming, but they kept pecking away at the Reds' pitchers, and amassed enough runs to win.

The local club played a sloppy defensive ball game, but made up for it by hitting the ball all over the park. George Hailer banged out a circuit blow. Palmi, Vasquez and Hannan led the attack on the Red pitchers.

Wallgren, Pessina and Flack were hitting stars for the Reds, Flack getting a home run.

Due to the change in the schedule Daly City Tanforan will journey to Fresno, instead of Santa Cruz, this coming Sunday.

OAKLAND POLICE DEPARTMENT ADD TO FLEET OF CARS

One Of Most Completely Equipped Police Forces In United States

Twelve new 1936 Ford V-8's recently went into service for the Oakland Police Department, bulwarking an already large motorized corps of police cars.

The new addition includes nine radio patrol cars, Ford V-8 coupes, two ambulances, and one police patrol car—all Ford V-8's. Chief Bode Wallman of the Oakland police force declared himself satisfied with the 1936 cars, and stated that with these in action on the streets, Oakland has one of the most completely equipped motorized police forces of any city in the United States.

Chosen for their exceptional economy and durability, the new V-8's are not the first purchased by the Oakland police for radio patrol. Last year twelve Ford V-8's were delivered which are in duty as radio patrol cars at the present time. Members of the force stated a preference for the V-8's in their line of action. The tremendous power of the V-8 engine, giving rapidly acceleration and speed, make these cars most effective in running down radio calls,

TANFO JUNIORS LOSE FIRST CONTEST

The Daly City Tanforan Juniors lost their first game in five starts to the fast Apex Tavern ball team, last Sunday, at Jefferson Union High School diamond, by the score of six to one.

The Apex Taverns had a very formidable ball club; in fact, it was the best aggregation that the Juniors have played thus far. This team was formerly the Boldeman Chocolate Club that represented Base Hospital. Dave Johnson and Harry Krohn led the Tanforan sluggers, each collecting two base hits.

Imperial garnered two long doubles

THREE GRADUATE

At the seventy-third commencement exercises held in the Memorial Stadium on the University of California campus, last Saturday, three local men received diplomas.

Those graduating are: Kenneth Thomas, from the College of Commerce; Leonard Farber, College of Engineering; and William Michie Jaques, College of Letters and Sciences.

they said.

In delivering the twelve new cars a few weeks ago, congratulations were extended to Chief Bode Wallman on the effectiveness of the police patrols. Even before the addition of these 1936 Ford V-8's Oakland police protection was outstanding, and with these supplementing the previous fleet, residents of Oakland may well say that their police force is one of the best in the nation.

SYNOPSIS

The Duke, Barry Gilbert, likable youth of twenty-three, jobless and broke, enters an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a storm. He makes himself at home. Dozing at the fireplace, he is startled by the arrival of a butler, Willetts; and a chauffeur, Evans. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Ridder, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff it out. His supposed parents have left for Germany. Next morning he is given a letter for his "mother." He opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come, and returning a hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had pensioned him into obscurity. Barry pockets the money, intending to return it later. He orders Evans to take him to Montauk, intending to disappear there. On the way he meets Judge Hambridge and his daughter, Patricia. Believing he is Jack Ridder, she invites him to dinner the following Thursday. Barry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer. Mr. Ridder, Sr., through his newspaper, the Globe, accuses Judge Hambridge of taking orders from Tammany Hall in a condemnation proceeding. Barry meets Peter Winslow, prominent attorney. Winslow tells Barry that Judge Hambridge had seen an accident in which a woman was killed by a taxicab. At home Barry finds the wife of the real Jack Ridder awaiting him. Her husband is in jail in New York, charged with the murder of Mike Kelly, Tammany boss. The girl, Peggy, tells Barry how she had met Jack in Florida and married him, as Jay Rogers. Jack lost his job, and they went to New York, where she got work at the Coconut Bar. There she was accused of trying to pick the pocket of Mike Kelly, and was arrested. Her husband went to Kelly's to induce him to drop the charge. Later Kelly was found dead, his skull crushed by a decanter. Barry suggests he can help as Jack Ridder, and Mrs. Rogers agrees. Judge Hambridge delivers a decision in the condemnation suit in which Kelly had been interested. Barry cables Mrs. Ridder for $2,000. Winslow takes Rogers' case. Barry gets a job on the Globe under his true name. The editor, Ernie Harwood, assigns him to cover the Kelly murder. Barry suspects the Filipino servant of Kelly.

"Yes, sir."

"I've been a loafer most of my life—and this is the beginning of a new chapter."

"Thank you, sir," Willetts said. "I'm very pleased, sir. If you don't mind my saying so, very pleased."

There were three memos of telephone messages from Pat.

Looking at them, on the library table, Barry went on grinning. He called her immediately, and she asked where he'd been all week. When he told her, she seemed almost annoyed. "So you've deserted me for a chorus girl," she said.

Could Pat be jealous?

"How soon can you come over?" she inquired. "Marian's not here yet, and dinner'll be late, but I simply can't wait to hear your adventures in sleuthing."

As he dressed, Barry kept thinking of this conversation. Absurd that Patricia Hambridge could be worried by his attachment to the "glittery lady." "Willets and Pat both ooze disapproval. Or do I merely imagine it?"

But Pat's disapproval, at least, was depressingly evident from the moment he saw her.

She met him at the door, looking lovelier than ever.

"The one girl in the world for me," Barry thought.

"Let's sit on the sun porch," Pat greeted him. "Father'll be down in a minute. Marian came over by ferry from New London. She's dressing. Fancy your being concerned with this Kelly murder. A true motion-picture hero. Go on; I want all the details."

And, as Barry related them, the girl's irritation began to show in her face. It wasn't fair, she said, to "drag poor old Peter into it." Just because they'd met in this house at dinner. Nor could she see why he wanted to go into his father's office under the name of Barry Gilbert.

"Frankly, I'm disappointed in you," she concluded, and obviously meant it.

Before Barry could reply, the Judge appeared, looking tired and haggard. That changed the subject, and Patricia's voice, which had been a little strident, softened again. She was plainly disturbed about the old gentleman, and kept glancing at him anxiously. "Father's been ill all week," she said.

"You ought've called off this dinner."

"I wanted you to meet Marian. But I do hope she comes down soon. Father's got to get to bed early."

The Judge patted her hand.

"Nonsense!"

"The doctor warned you against late hours," Pat reminded him. "But you would go to that banquet last Friday."

"That wasn't late hours," the Judge argued. "We were all through before midnight."

"But then you went for a walk," Barry said.

He said it quite innocently, but he was startled at seeing Hambridge's hand close spasmodically over Patricia's.

"Who told you that?" the Judge asked.

"Mr. Winslow."

Hambridge relaxed again.

"So I did," he recollected. "But only a couple of blocks."

"Nearer a couple of miles, wasn't it?"

but there was nothing casual in the Judge's "Why do you say that?"

"Mr. Winslow says you saw that taxi accident at Sixteenth street and Fifth avenue."

The Judge raised his eyes to Barry's, almost defiantly.

"The taxi accident I saw was in Times square," he declared. "I don't know where you got the idea that it was at Sixteenth street. I certainly didn't say that to Peter."

"What does it matter?" Pat asked. "Here we are, gossiping, when I'm supposed to be preparing you for a reunion."

"A what?"

"A reunion. With an old friend. That's the reason Marian was so anxious that I should have you here. I didn't know myself until half an hour ago. Marian Lorn. Do you remember? She knew you at Harvard."

Well, it was bound to come, Barry thought.

"Are you surprised? Marian wanted you to be—terribly."

"I am—terribly."

This was the pay-off. What would Patricia say?

Patricia was saying, "Well, you must be delighted, too. Marian was going to surprise all of us, and then she lost her nerve. 'Wouldn't it be too catastrophic,' she said, 'if he didn't remember me?'"

Miss Lorn was on her way down the stairs.

Barry braced himself.

"Come on, you!" Pat called. "Dinner's waiting, and so's Mr. Ridder."

Marian raced down the steps, and halted, looking at him across the balustrade.

"Mr. Ridder?"

Now for it!

"Well," she continued, "the joke's on me. I should never have known you."

"I'd've known you anywhere."

"Of course, you had to say that. But didn't your hair used to be dark?"

"Sure; I hennaed it."

"No foolin'! I thought you were slighter, too. But, of course, there was only that one evening."

Thank God for that!

"Don't tell me we met only once?"

"Don't you remember?"

"It doesn't seem possible that I let you slip through my fingers."

"Come on," Patricia urged. "Everything's getting cold."

Not Barry. He was warming up.

"Well, it was bound to come," Barry thought.

and actually enjoying himself. It was amazingly how his luck held!

A pretty girl, Marian; all stuff and gurgles. She and Barry had the table conversation pretty much to themselves. Patricia put in a word occasionally, but she was distressed about her father, and with reason, for the Judge seemed suddenly worn out. Exhilarated by this newest escape, Barry was almost brilliant. They were finishing their coffee, when Marian said, "Do you still play?"

"Bridge or golf?" he asked.

"Silly! The violin, of course! I hope you haven't been flatterer yourself that it was you I remember. It wasn't. I didn't even know whether your hair was dark or fair, but I'll never forget the way you played the Liebestod."

"You never told me you played," Pat said.

"Oh, I don't any more. That was a youthful indiscretion."

"Youthful genius, I call it!" Marian persisted. "That night was full of music, Pat. A party at Betty Fletcher's. I came late, as usual, and the lights were very low, and Mr. Ridder was just beginning the Liebestod. Little you knew what an admirer you left in that darkened room."

"Shame on you!" exclaimed Patricia. "You've got to play for me now."

Waterloo.

"I haven't touched a violin since I left college," Barry protested. "I don't even know where the old fiddle is."

"Mine's upstairs," Marian interjected.

And she bounded out of the room.

"I can't play any more," Barry held out, lamely, "and I flatly decline to destroy Miss Lorn's illusions, or yours."

"No excuses," Pat said, very definitely. "Come on; we'll go into the drawing room."

As they passed through the old-fashioned sliding doors, Marian, instrument in hand, reappeared.

"I'll accompany you," she insisted.

"and I've brought the Liebestod."

"That's great," Barry said, "but I warn you—"

Patricia was opening the piano.

"I warn you," Barry said. "I'm going to make the most awful sounds human ears ever heard."

And, with that, he pulled together the double doors.

"Ouch!" he exclaimed.

They all turned to him.

"What's the matter?" Pat asked.

"Nothing serious," Barry replied, calmly. "I've slammed the doors on my fingers."

He held up his right hand.

It was crushed badly.

Everybody was extremely solicitous, and Pat wanted to send for the doctor.

"Certainly not," Barry declared. "It's only broken the skin."

"I'll take care of it now," Patricia said, dispatching the butler for witch-hazel and bandages.

"Well, that's the end of the violin playing," Marian remarked.

"I'm afraid so. Wasn't I stupid?"

"Not at all," Patricia answered, manipulating the gauze deftly.

"The Judge wanted to go to bed early, anyway. I wonder whether you'd mind telephoning for Evans."

"I'll run you home in the roadster," Pat volunteered, touching the bell again.

"It's been a swell evening," Barry insisted, giving Marian his left hand.

"Pleasant surprise, meeting you here. This isn't good-by, is it?"

"That's up to you. I'll be around until Monday."

"Good night, Judge, and I hope you feel better tomorrow."

The roadster had been brought to the door, and Patricia climbed into it. "I'll be back soon," she promised.

Five minutes later, the car halted in front of the Ridder house.

"Thanks awfully," Barry said.

"Don't mention it."

There was something very like mockery in her voice.

"And, Mr. Gilbert—"

For an instant, Barry wasn't certain he had heard aright.

"You've got courage," Patricia went on. "I'll say that for you. And a grand sense of melodrama. I suppose you picked that up in Hollywood."

"I don't know what you're talking about," Barry floundered, helplessly.

"No? Well, maybe I'll tell you sometime."

She laughed.

"Meanwhile—as he alighted from the car—I'd watch my step, if I were you."

"I'm all right," Barry rejoined.

"That depends," Patricia said. "You're being a little bit reckless, I think."

She put her foot on the accelerator, and the car moved away.

CHAPTER V

Pat knew of his imposture.

That was clear. And what else?

For hours after her car had left him at the door, Barry sat in the library of the big house where he had no right to be, thinking, thinking. And the more he thought, the more complete was his mystification.

Every word Pat had spoken, every intonation, was impressed on his mind. "And, Mr. Gilbert—" she had said. "You've got courage. And a grand sense of melodrama. I suppose you picked that up in Hollywood."

How did she know?

Obviously, the crushed finger had not deceived her. No question about it; the girl had seen through his desperate ruse, and realized that he had closed the doors on his hand deliberately to avoid the discovery that he was not John Clarke Ridder, Jr. She must have had some hint of his brief career in the movies.

After all, that would have been simple. The vague recollection of his appearance in a picture; an old circular, with his photograph. Not without pride, Barry reflected that he had won mention in advertising before he left Hollywood. What did it matter, anyway? She knew. And she had advised him to watch his step. "You're being a little bit reckless, I think," she had warned him.

Was that a warning—or a threat? And why should Pat threaten? The answer to that was apparent. "She doesn't want me to ask questions about her father. But why not? What is she trying to conceal?"

That, too, was easily answered.

Of course, there had been no taxi accident in Times square. It was absurd to suppose that two cabs had mounted the pavement and killed two women almost simultaneously. The Judge's accident had been at Sixteenth street. What was he doing down there—a hundred yards from Mike Kelly's—at two in the morning? The same morning Kelly was murdered? A few hours before the filing of a decision alleged to have been dictated by Kelly.

"None of my business!" Barry snapped at himself. "I'm not a detective." But, why should Pat be afraid of investigation?

Why "afraid?" She was worried about her father's condition, and did not want him harassed needlessly. Under the circumstances, of course, she resented Barry's proddings. "But, damn it," Barry exclaimed, "she began resenting before I even mentioned her father!"

He made an effort to marshal his facts.

"Three things are clear," he began. "Kelly was expecting someone when Jack left. . . . Or was he? Winslow doubted that, too. Anyway, Kelly told Jack someone telephoned. And then Hambridge arrived at Sixteenth street. Hambridge denies that he did so. And then Hambridge's daughter warns me—"

He had begun pacing the floor.

FOUR THINGS CAUSE MANY ACCIDENTS

Four "ins" that contribute heavily to accidents are: inattention, inexperience, incompetency and indifference.

Inattention is probably the outstanding cause of motor vehicle deaths and injuries today. The day-dreamer, the scenery watcher, the driver who talks too much, the fellow whose mind runs around in circles—all of these and others are an easy prey to distractions.

Inexperience exacts heavy toll, too, as does incompetency, but just keep in mind that incompetency does not necessarily mean inexperience. There are a great many "dumb" drivers today who have been at the wheel for many years. They continue to be a menace to safety because of luck and also because the state in which they live has no provision for examining drivers. Less than half the states have standard drivers license laws at the present time.

Indifference, inspired by selfishness or stubbornness, is all too common, too.

Every variety of palm in the world is on the grounds of the 1936 California Pacific International Exposition at San Diego.

Mrs. F. LaFortune and son James report a pleasant motor trip to San Juan and way points, Sunday of this week.

Willie Barady and Owen Greene spent a pleasant day visiting with friends and relatives, Sunday of this week, at Martinez.

Mrs. Lena Hedin returned to her home in Palo Alto, Tuesday of last week, from the Junipero Serra Hospital. She had been undergoing treatment for an eye injury.

Hundreds of ex-Texans, now residing in Southern California, this week will begin their trek back to their native state to attend the opening of the $25,000,000 Texas Centennial Exposition at Dallas, June 6. Many of the Texans plan to go by way of the California Pacific International Exposition at San Diego, where they will attend special Texas Day exercises, next Sunday, May 24, known as the pre-Centennial roundup and is to feature a display of friendship between the rival Dallas and San Diego World Fairs.

The Texans at their San Diego Day will organize a special train, which is to leave Los Angeles via the Southern Pacific for Dallas on June 3.

Many of the southern California visitors to the Texas Centennial plan to reach Dallas to see President Roosevelt, who will lead the opening day parade and who will give an international radio address from the exposition grounds.

In July, officials of the Tournament of Roses Association are planning to send their Bulldog band to the Olympic games in Germany. A two day stop will be made by the band at Dallas to repay the courtesy visit of many Texans to the Rose Bowl game last New Years day.

SURVEY SHOWS TREND RUNS TO BRIGHTER HUES

Black Drops To Third Place As Colors Gain, De Soto Official Reveals

American motorists are choosing brighter colors for automobiles this year more than ever before, according to color preference reports for 1936 just prepared by manufacturers.

Grays and tans are this year's favorites, with black now in third place among the colors chosen most frequently since introduction of the 1936 models, it was shown by one company's records.

Platinum gray and Winchester gun metal were selected by nearly 30 per cent of new car buyers, with preference evenly divided between the two shades, according to James E. Donahue, local De Soto and Plymouth dealer. Next in popularity are the brown tones, with Autumn gold, Vogue brown and Stone beige representing more than 24 per cent of the requested shipments.

Less than one fourth of this year's requests were for black or Blue Danube blue, the two darkest hues in the De Soto line. Last year these colors led in popularity, when they represented 35 per cent of total production in the eight colors available at that time.

SPARK PLUG GAPS

Spark plug gaps should always be set according to the manufacturers' instructions.

When the engine misses while idling or at light loads the gaps are probably too close and should be set wider. Missing at high speed or under heavy load indicates that the gaps are probably too wide.

WIPERS WEAR OUT

The rubber blade on a windshield wiper eventually wears out and should be replaced before the metal holder has a chance to scratch the windshield glass.

MINING NOTES OF VARIOUS SECTIONS

Approximately two million dollars has been expended on the Matanuska valley government project since its inception a year ago, E. W. Griffin, secretary of Alaska has reported.

There are now 167 families living in the Matanuska colony, indicating that close to $12,000 has been expended in Federal aid for each family which was transplanted from the drought-stricken regions of the middle west to the Interior of Alaska.

The project, on January 1, was officially transferred to the Federal Reclamation administration under direction of Rexford G. Tugwell.

The Federal government plans to bring the colony up to its full quota of 200 families, replacing those who left after the first few months because of discontent, Griffin said. Those who are now at the colony are apparently satisfied and intend to remain he added.

Dr. John W. Finch of the United States Bureau of Mines, estimates that two-thirds of the nation's wealth of $163 billion in 1932 had between 60 and 70 per cent of its origin in the mineral industry.

That works out at from $33 to $40 billion derived from the industry in the past century and a quarter.

Dr. Finch's figures include 12 billion ounces of silver; 40 billion pounds of zinc; 100 billion pounds of copper and 136 billion pounds of lead.

Canada has been definitely relegated to fourth place among gold-producing nations of the world, with South Africa first; Russia, coming with leaps and bounds, second and United States third by a big margin in 1935.

American Bureau of Metal Statistics places world production at 29,201,000 ounces, worth $1,022,035,000, compared with 27,339,233 ounces, worth $956,873,155 in 1934, up $65,161,845.

South Africa was up from 10,479,857 ounces in 1934 to 10,770,000 ounces in 1935; United States up

Thus, United States beat out Canada for third place by 341,000 ounces, worth $11,935,000.

Russia is carried in the estimate at 4,200,000 ounces for the year, but there is every reason to believe this estimate was largely exceeded, possibly reaching as much as 5,000,000 or 5,500,000 ounces.

BIG HANDICAP AT BADEN TRACK TOMORROW NIGHT

The sleek hounds at Baden Kennel Club will race tomorrow night in one of the most important events of the 1936 summer season—the Memorial Day Handicap, which has attracted the best dogs in training. To the winner will go the War Cry Cup, to be presented by W. R. Burnett, author of "Little Caesar," "Dr. Soerates," "Giant Swing," and other popular books which have been made into moving pictures.

Burnett, who lives in Glendale, is called the Vanderbilt of dog racing. Several years ago, the author was watching a race at the old Culver City track. He saw War Cry perform, and was so impressed with the dog and the sport of dog racing that he claimed him for $1500.

Since then he has acquired 60 racing dogs, which he keeps on a ranch near Monrovia. His Sergeant Troy won the Baden Inaugural, and his Lefty Ellis has been one of the most successful campaigners at this meeting.

Burnett's trainer is the veteran Dink Choate.
